HISTORIC STRUGGLE DEMANDS ATTENTION

Football interest Saturday centered on Annual Yale-Harvard Game For Championship.

(Special to the Gazette.)
New Haven, Nov. 20.—The eyes of the football world will be turned to New Haven on Saturday, when Captain Brickley's wonderful Harvard machine will come in contact with Yale's steam roller, led by Captain Tubot. It will be the biggest event of the year, so far as eastern football is concerned. Both teams are in splendid condition.

Going solely on the dope, Yale appears to be as good as Harvard and, in the matter of attack, taking the showing of each against Princeton, here's the way it looks to a neutral:

Harvard reached her objective through the Tiger defense by means of a sure-as-death-and-taxes advance that was as regular and steady as the procession of a naval observatory's clock hands. Their daily trip from 12 to 13, Yale achieved her destination via an attack that was brilliantly versatile and startlingly spectacular, albeit the blue route was as studied as that of the crimson, and as certain.

To put it another way, Harvard triumphed via the ground route; Yale via the air with her slashing, uninvolved system of double, triple, quadruple and forward passes.

The score of 11 points rolled up by Princeton in the final period doesn't worry Coach Hinkley of Yale. It was made after almost an entire new team of second string men had replaced the regulars.

Neither does the fact that Princeton's second touchdown was made through the regulars who were returned to the game. They had been sitting in the cold on the side lines and were starved.

If anything, Hinkley regards himself particularly fortunate, for the crimson tide that will sweep down on Saturday probably will remember only the fact that Princeton scored two touchdowns against Yale and none against Harvard, with the result that the crimson men may underestimate the Yale strength.

Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Browns, who never plays on Sunday—in fact, does not even go near a ball park on the Sabbath—is following in the footsteps of Billy Sunday. He attends church and preaches the religion which he tries to practice. There the ways part. Where Sunday "exhortors" in the old-fashioned way with a new-fashioned slant, Rickey is the quiet, trained speaker, the only reminder of the diamond in his talk being a use of baseball terms to drive home his facts to the every-day American audience he faces. Rickey spoke by invitation at one of the most fashionable churches in East St. Louis, Ill., recently. He put the same punch into his sermonette that he puts into his ball team on the field. He likened life to a box score and he urged the church folk to play the game, "play by play, and the result would take care of itself."

The Royal Rooters movement in Boston dates back seventeen years, but it was not until 1903 that it attained great proportions. In 1887, during the days of the old Temple series, Boston and Baltimore came together in what proved to be the final series for this trophy. A band of Boston rooters organized themselves and followed the team to the Oriole City after the Bleepers, as Seale's team was then known, had dropped two out of three games in the Hub. The Rooters came home rather dejected, as the Boston team dropped two straight games in Baltimore. But the movement that had its beginning in this series has been revived with every winning team that Boston has since had, and the Royal Rooters are now known from one end of the country to the other.

The coming winter promises to be a busy one for amateur and professional billiard experts. To the operations of the Champion Billiard Players' league and the Inter-city Three Cushion league are to be added four tournaments by the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, tournaments of the Elks Billiard league and a professional tournament to establish the world's championship at three-cushion caroms.

Despite the war, a strong team of Swedish athletes are coming here for the international track and field meet, which will be held at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco next year. Ernie Hjertberg, trainer of the Swedish athletes, says in a letter to the manager of the games that he will bring over at least a dozen men. He says that in order to allow the men to make the trip the college championships have been postponed, which is supported by the government, has consented to finance the trip.

Frank Chance's troubles did not end when he resigned as leader of the Highlanders. The Peoria leader arrived on Tuesday morning with his big auto, in which he intended to make the trip from New York. Chance gave up the auto journey at Lewis, Ill., and shipped his car to Omaha, to which point he traveled by train. The railroad is still searching for his machine.

The United States will challenge for the Davis international lawn tennis cup for 1915. The fact that the war in Europe may prevent some of the other nations from challenging has been duly considered by the American officials. The opinion is that this nation should formally issue a challenge to the Australian association at the time of the annual meeting of the United States National Lawn Tennis association at New York in January.

Gridiron games Saturday will decide championships. With Harvard meeting Yale at New Haven, the eastern title controversy will be settled and the conference laurels will be handed to the winner of the Illinois-Wisconsin game at Madison. Shining in the limelight of importance also is the annual duel between Chicago and Minnesota at Chicago. These three games will make the grand final for the year. A game, secondary in importance, is the struggle between Nebraska and Iowa, the former being the king of the Missouri valley and rated as one of the best teams in the west.

Because of the so-called national title, the Harvard-Yale game looms up as the biggest spot of the day and never in the history of these two schools, has a game been watched with more interest. There are various opinions as to the outcome for "dope" is so confusing, but all concede that the "break of the game" will mark the winner. Yale has proven a disappointment to her followers having been defeated by the Washington and Jefferson team but the Eli wiped out this black mark by downing Princeton. Against the Tigers, Yale revealed a versatile and powerful attack that was fully up to expectations. There were few weak spots in the Blue eleven, Coach Hinkley having put the finishing touches to his team. Indications point toward the fact that Yale will attempt to baffie the crimson with the ruby pass formations and play displayed against Notre Dame and will Harvard be prepared to meet it? These plays have been corked up since that game and every bit of energy on the Blue eleven has been strained for the Harvard struggle. A set defense will meet Haughton's proteges and his brilliant backfield with Wilson to lead them will fight for the historic victory.

Harvard in only one game—the Princeton contest—showed her real strength and the scores attained against the crimson are practically meaningless. One thing that stands in the matter of scores is that Yale has had her goal line crossed in nearly every game, showing her defensive power to be weak. Harvard still clings to the straight line attack of bucks and plungers with a thoroughly drilled forward wall in opening holes. In massed attack the crimson, are vastly superior to Yale but Haughton has not showed much alertness on the open game or with the use of the lateral passes, used to a great advantage in the east and by Illinois. Both elevens are in fit condition with no injured players to rob their strength. True, Brickley, Harvard's marvelous back and kicker is not fit for scrimmage but in the last week the Harvard captain has showed his legs has lost none of his cunning, and his expert kicking may prove a turning point.

The question of whether Wisconsin will stop Illinois in their conference march is the most interesting football question to be answered in western football. Zuppke's eleven by vanquishing the Badgers can eliminate all dispute to their first championship and the downstaters, by past performances look fit to turn the tide. Unless the Badgers can stop the Illinois backfield, they will be humbled, for the downstater's line is not considered stronger than that of the Badgers. Since the defeat headed Wisconsin by Minnesota, the Badgers stock in the "big nine" has fallen greatly and it appears that the state men are just good for one "fighting game" a year when they spring a surprise by upsetting the hopes of a championship contender. The Orange and Black possess the best-oiled scoring machine in the west which no other team has been able to stop. Will Wisconsin do it?

Battling for runner-up positions, Chicago and Minnesota will meet at Stagg Field, Chicago. On dope there is scarcely a shade between the two. Chicago beat Iowa 7 to 0, the same score that the Gophers trimmed them last year. The season's record is better in the Wisconsin game, winning while Chicago escaped with a tie game. Both fell a prey to Illinois. The Gophers look to have the best offense while the Maroons have an edge on the defensive tactics. Injury has crippled Stagg's men but the Maroons may be depend upon to make a game fight against Dr. William's steam-roller.

The Iowa-Nebraska game will settle Nebraska's claim as being Western champion for Iowa has proven a tough foe to all of the conference teams this season. Nebraska has not suffered defeat and a decisive victory for the Cornhuskers would place them on equal terms with the "big nine" schools.

The Indiana-Purdue game will be bitterly waged and the Gophermarch are generally picked to win. Northwestern will close its season of defeats with Ohio state.

Will the passing of Vean Gregg to the Boston Red Sox and Ivan Olson to the Cincinnati Reds serve as a warning to other disgruntled Naps? It was a foregone conclusion early last season that Gregg, Olson and a couple of other players who were not in strict accord with Manager Birmingham's policies would play in foreign new. Of course, Gregg fared pretty well, as Boston is a great ball town, but no player ever jumped at the suggestion or appeared over-anxious to pastime in Redville.

SENTIMENT AGAINST ATHLETIC'S MANAGER

Since Connie Mack Has Asked Waivers of Three Veterans Pitchers, Phila. Fans are Sore.
(By Hal Sheridan.)

New York, Nov. 20.—There is persistent gossip down Philadelphia way that all is not as serene as it might be between the Quakertown public and its once mightily beloved Cornelius McGillicuddy, otherwise known as C. Mack. And the reason for the public's mad on against Mack, by the way, is a grand testimonial to the game of swat and wallop; it is one answer to why baseball lives and holds the fans despite the horrendous wrangling and avariciousness which some times break out among the magnates.

The reason is sentiment. The Philadelphia public (provided our line of communication with that far off city has not been tapped by fakers who sent us unconfirmed, baseless rumors as facts) is some sore on Connie since that able leader and originator of $100,000 infields asked waivers on Eddie Plank, Jack Coombs and Chief Bender. The case of care, less in that first game when the Boston Braves started their dash to the ultimate wrung of the baseball ladder. But they do not think Mack should have made a place for Plank in that first game when the Boston Braves started their dash to the ultimate wrung of the baseball ladder. But they do not think Mack should have made a place for Plank in that first game when the Boston Braves started their dash to the ultimate wrung of the baseball ladder.

It will be remembered that John McGraw tried to let go of McCormick and several other members of the tried and true but fading old guard toward the end of the season two years ago and that it didn't go. Even the rest of the Giant players had their say about McGraw's plan and McGraw, fearing the trouble would affect his pennant hopes, had to surrender at least until after the World's Series of that year so the men he wanted to get rid of could get in on the Series swag.

Just as Chicago, Minnesota and other Western football teams must join Michigan and Notre Dame in their invasion of the East, so must Harvard, Yale and Princeton join with Penn, Cornell and Syracuse in the Eastern dash into Western territory. If inter-sectional clashes are to continue and bring about the much needed additional impetus to the gridiron game, True, Harvard took on Michigan this year, but it will take a lot of coaxing to get the staid New Englanders to leave their dear Stadium for a journey to the West. Yale also has taken on Notre Dame for two years, but so far the Elis have shown no disposition to pack their grips and go West for battle. Princeton is fully expected to take on some Western eleven next fall with the provision that the games be played alternately at Princeton and the home of the team chosen.

Jennings just missed the leadership of the Brooklyn team last year. He was willing to lead the Robins, but President Navin of the Detroit club thought he was too valuable a manager to let go. And we guess the owner of the Tigers was right. Hughey is an attraction in himself and will draw a crowd anywhere he leads a team of ball players on a field.

THE TRUTH.

Ever since the present European war started there has been much discussion pro and con as to the cause and possible effect of the struggle. As would be expected, England, France and Russia have laid all blame upon the shoulders of Germany, while Germany blamed Russia and tried to show by conclusive arguments that England was the real cause of it all. Writers of note on all sides of the question have written reams of paper on the subject, the newspapers of the various countries and of America have discussed it at length and failed to reach any definite conclusions.

There have been pro-German and pro-Allies arguments without number and the general public is as much at sea about the cause and effect as ever. Among the papers that have been strongly pro-Allies in this discussion is the Wall Street Journal, and now it comes out quite gleefully and shows that it was right all along by quoting from a recent article of Maximilian Harden, a German writer of note called "the most influential publicist in Germany," in which, according to the Journal, "he does not offer insult to American intelligence."

American conceptions of freedom and humanity are, it will be seen, beside the question.

"Let us drop our miserable attempts to excuse Germany's action," he writes, "and let us see what a nation taken by surprise and with her hands tied, this gigantic venture. We will it. We had to will it. We do not stand before the judgment seat of Europe. We acknowledge no such jurisdiction. Our right shall create a new law in Europe. It is Germany that strikes. When she has conquered new dominions for her genius, then the priesthood of all the gods will praise the God of War."

"Germany is not making this war to crush similar or to free oppressed peoples, and then to rest in the consciousness of disinterested magnanimity. She sets out from the immovable conviction that her achievements entitle her to demand more elbow room on the earth and wider outlets for her activity."

Harden is no friend of the corrupt armament ring or its allies, the militarist party and the feudal aristocracy.

He states the case with a frank recognition of the return to the medieval doctrine of force—"the good old rule, the simple plan, that he shall take who has the power, and he shall keep who can." He says openly what is implied in all the other pleas of confession and avoidance.

He gives away the German objective with equal frankness:

"We will remain in the lowlands of Belgium, to which we will add a narrow strip of coast toward Calais. This will close the war, from which there is nothing more to gain, after having vindicated our honor."

As Lady Tazewell says, "Suppose we leave honor out of the question?"

This throws down the gauntlet to the whole world. It defies every sanction binding society together. A pledge is valid until you are strong enough to break it. The voice of the Belgians, or any other people, on their own government is negligible.

Americans who fought for the liberation of Cuba should have no illusions. The slur upon "disinterested magnanimity" tells the truth at last. The sanctity of private contract is bound up in the inviolability of public treaty. The right of the individual is inseparable from the rights of small but highly civilized peoples. Germany is not merely fighting a world in arms, she is fighting a world's conscience right and wrong, without which civilization would be meaningless.

SUFFERING HUMANITY.

These bitter cold days and nights should bring closer to us all the suffering and want that afflicts the unfortunate people, without homes, without shelter, without proper clothing, yes, even without food, who are the victims of the useless war being waged. Regardless of the rights or wrongs of the whole struggle poor, unfortunate Belgium is the sufferer. America is aiding materially by sending shipments of provisions and necessities to their assistance, but more is needed and many a Thanksgiving dinner will be much more palatable if a contribution is made to the fund being raised in Rock county to aid in the work. The lists can be found at the four banks, at Baker's drug store and the Gazette office. Do your share and be confident it is a cause well worth your careful consideration.

GLORIOUS WEATHER.

The person who enters complaint against the glorious Wisconsin weather should stop and consider how essential the cold and snow and ice are to the future enriching of the soil which raises such bumper crops. It is just as important to feed the soil that produces our produce as it is to care for the human being. The zero weather, the snow that will come, the ice, all play their part in its enrichment and nourishment and the result is healthy crops and harvests in the coming year. Think of that when you complain of the cold mornings and icy walks.

THE HOLIDAY SEASON.

The holiday season approaches. The stores have already put on a pre-Christmas appearance and the slogan goes out through the land, "Shop Early." It is two-fold in its significance. By shopping early you avoid the final Christmas rush, you are able to make your selections carefully and without rush or hurry and at the same time you aid materially the shopkeeper and his over-worked clerks during the annual-hurry for gifts at the last minute. Make your plans accordingly and plan to "Shop Early."

Governor-elect Philipp has signified that he does not care for any unusual demonstration at his coming inauguration and would prefer to do away with the proposed inaugural ball, having a reception in the afternoon take its place. Mr. Philipp stated during his campaign he wished to be the governor of the people and for the people and he starts in well with genuine simplicity and not the blare and blatt sound of the bizzare rejoicing.

There is apparently some doubt in Governor McGovern's mind yet whether Paul Hustling is the bonafide elected United States senator, and he wants that recount made most carefully so there can be no mistake whatsoever. He places his faith on the fact that the alleged there were thousands of votes thrown out for various reasons that would have benefited his candidacy.

The latest name for the present season is Cosack winter. We have had Indian summer and now the between and betwixt season is officially Cosack winter. How do you like it?

Turkey is a trifle careless with its shooting irons to say the least. A little target practice is all right, but not when the United States warships' launch happens to be the target.

The Mexican warfare is really worth more than the space given it in the papers, but as Villa appears to be having the best of it doubtless "Watchful, Waiting Woodrow" would not be pleased at exceptional publicity.

Why does not some enterprising chautauqua manager engage William Jennings Bryan and his dove of peace, and Carranza and Villa, for a summer circuit. It would beat any juggling act all hollow.

Dixmude is now as famous as any winter resort as far as publicity goes, but just the same it is a good place to keep away from just at present.

OUR National Opportunity LESSONS for AMERICA from the WAR

EUROPE CANNOT SCOLD US.

By George H. Benedict.

Certain European writers have chided us for rejoicing over the opportunities that the war gives American manufacturers for extending their foreign trade.

"How cold blooded," they say, "for you to rejoice over a chance to profit by your misfortunes!"

The answer has been made, and it will bear repeating, that Europe did not consult us about starting the war, which discouraged our financial and commercial machinery so badly that we were a couple of months getting our bearings.

If Jones and Smith so far lose their common sense as to get into a fight which lands them both in a hospital, they have no complaint coming if Brown, sober and peace-loving, gets some of the hurt on one of his faces.

Government veterinarians working in southern Wisconsin in an effort to exterminate the hoof and mouth disease, welcomed the sudden cold wave and declare that it will prove a most valuable aid in stamping out the disease here.

No new traces of the plague in this immediate vicinity have cropped out, and with the slaying of the stock on the C. E. Parr farm yesterday, it is hoped the epidemic has been stopped in this country.

Today the federal men covered the big trench into which the forty cattle and one hundred and sixteen hogs owned by Mr. Parr were dumped after being shot, and early next week the disinfecting work at the farm will be done.

Seven men besides Mr. Parr were engaged in the slaughtering work yesterday afternoon. Five of these men are under the employ of the United States government, and they took the usual preventive measure of wearing rubber suits that cover their entire bodies and to disinfect their suits and equipment with a solution of mercury afterward.

When the huge ditch had been completed the cattle were driven into the bottom and the ends closed. A federal man, armed with a high-powered rifle, shot them and the hogs he could fire the weapon. The hogs were run close to the top of the trench, shot, and then dropped over. When the killing was finished, the men with axes dismembered the carcasses and spread quick lime over the animals to insure their quick destruction.

Five feet of earth must be placed over the grave. The Parr farm is still under rigid quarantine, and until the stables, yards and stock feeding equipment has been disinfected with it will be raised.

In speaking of the necessity of the wanton destruction of the herds, one of the federal veterinarians stated last evening: "While the mortality rate is small, unfavorable conditions will lead to secondary infections. An animal that has recovered from the disease is likely to have prolonged soreness of the mouth and feet, interfering with eating and locomotion and even will lead to the slaughtering of the herds. The losses due to dairy cattle amount to $25 to $40 and from $10 to $15 in beef animals. The contagiousness of the disease is so great that in the absence of drastic measures to control it, it would spread in a few years throughout the whole country, multiplying the individual losses by enormous amounts."

As it develops, however, Europe has reason to be thankful for our commercial activity, rather than resentful. We are supplying the food that Europe needs, much of the clothing, and a great many supplies for the armies. The South American market, which we thought at the outset we would take for our own, now proves not so very desirable. Selling a bill of goods to a man, and then lending him money on long time to make payment, isn't very desirable business.

Our best field for foreign trade is right in Europe, and when the war ends, our sales there will be so much larger as to bring one of the greatest waves of prosperity we have known.

Europe will be a land of ruined bridges and public buildings, dismantled and run down factories, and depleted working forces when the war ends.

Europe will have to come to us for structural steel, and for manufactured products of every kind, and it will have to keep on coming until its industrial forces are reorganized.

Europe has no valid complaint against us.

WELCOME COLD WAVE IN FIGHTING PLAGUE

Government veterinarians working in southern Wisconsin in an effort to exterminate the hoof and mouth disease, welcomed the sudden cold wave and declare that it will prove a most valuable aid in stamping out the disease here.

No new traces of the plague in this immediate vicinity have cropped out, and with the slaying of the stock on the C. E. Parr farm yesterday, it is hoped the epidemic has been stopped in this country.

Today the federal men covered the big trench into which the forty cattle and one hundred and sixteen hogs owned by Mr. Parr were dumped after being shot, and early next week the disinfecting work at the farm will be done.

Seven men besides Mr. Parr were engaged in the slaughtering work yesterday afternoon. Five of these men are under the employ of the United States government, and they took the usual preventive measure of wearing rubber suits that cover their entire bodies and to disinfect their suits and equipment with a solution of mercury afterward.

When the huge ditch had been completed the cattle were driven into the bottom and the ends closed. A federal man, armed with a high-powered rifle, shot them and the hogs he could fire the weapon. The hogs were run close to the top of the trench, shot, and then dropped over. When the killing was finished, the men with axes dismembered the carcasses and spread quick lime over the animals to insure their quick destruction.

Five feet of earth must be placed over the grave. The Parr farm is still under rigid quarantine, and until the stables, yards and stock feeding equipment has been disinfected with it will be raised.

In speaking of the necessity of the wanton destruction of the herds, one of the federal veterinarians stated last evening: "While the mortality rate is small, unfavorable conditions will lead to secondary infections. An animal that has recovered from the disease is likely to have prolonged soreness of the mouth and feet, interfering with eating and locomotion and even will lead to the slaughtering of the herds. The losses due to dairy cattle amount to $25 to $40 and from $10 to $15 in beef animals. The contagiousness of the disease is so great that in the absence of drastic measures to control it, it would spread in a few years throughout the whole country, multiplying the individual losses by enormous amounts."

farm and appraised the value of the stock lost by Mr. Parr at $2,400, which is considered a fair price for the animals by the owner. In case the state legislature passes measures at their next session to compensate the losses, beef price of the animals slaughtered will be given the farmers. In all cases the value of the stock slain has been estimated by the state and federal authorities and steps taken to remunerate the farmers.

BIG SECRET—IF YOU HAVE GRAY HAIR

Restore Color by Action of Air. No Dye—Nature Does It

Haven't you often wondered how friends of yours whom you know to be older than you keep themselves looking younger by retaining the natural beauty and youthful color of their hair? They undoubtedly use Hay's Hair Health.

In no sense whatever is Hay's Hair Health a dye. It is a combination of ingredients acknowledged to be best for stimulating the hair and creating a healthy scalp. Added to these is another element which so prepares each gray or faded hair that the air with which it comes in contact brings back the natural color. Harmless, yet positively sure. This has been proved in hundreds of thousands of cases. If Hay's Hair Health, which is sold in 25c, 50c and $1.00 bottles, fails in your case, all druggists, who sell it, will refund full price. They say they have no treacherous to do by the makers, Philo Hay Specialties Company, Newark, N. J. From their reports of sales it would seem that Hay's Hair Health is by far the most popular preparation of its kind ever sold in Janesville.

Hemo is strength-giving beef juice, blood-building iron, nourishing malt tonic, wheat, pure sweet milk and Waukesha Spring water. EVANSVILLE WOMAN DIES AT MADISON

Evansville, Nov. 20.—Death came to Mrs. E. L. Pratt at a hospital at Madison, where she has been confined since the eighth of September for treatment of a cancer, which caused her death. Mrs. Pratt had resided in Evansville for over fifty years and was prominently connected with the Congregational church and was an earnest troller in missionary work. The deceased was widely known in the state through her efforts in the W. C. T. U., of which she had been a member for a number of years, and has held state offices a number of times.
Mrs. Pratt's maiden name was Evelyn Elizabeth Holmes, and was born in North Anson, Maine, on April 24, 1841. She was united in marriage to Martin Pratt in an eastern city and with her husband came to Wisconsin shortly afterwards and they made their home in Evansville. Her husband has been dead for fifteen years. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Edith Colony, of Dr. F. C. Colony of this city, and one sister who resides in the east.
The remains were brought from Madison to Evansville this afternoon. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at a short prayer service at the Colony home at two-fifteen o'clock, and from the Congregational church at two-thirty. The Rev. R. Q. Grubill will officiate. Interment will be made in the Evansville cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Conley.
Last funeral rites for the late Mrs. M. Conley were held this morning at nine o'clock from St. Patrick's church, the Rev. Father Mahoney officiating. The church was well filled with relatives and friends of the deceased, who went to pay their last respects to a beloved resident who had lived in this city for the past fifty years, and was of a kind disposition and always ready to aid in whatever was asked of her. Her five sons acted as pallbearers. They are: Joseph, Daniel, James, William and George Conley. Interment was made in Mt. Olivet cemetery. Those from out of town who attended the obsequies were Mrs. William Harps and William Edward Hynes of Chicago, Mrs. Edward Cody of Rockford and Mrs. Joe McCaffrey of North Fond du Lac.

John Dawson.
Obsequies for John Dawson will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Patrick's church. Interment will be made in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

BREAKS RIGHT ARM CRANKING AN AUTO

I. F. Wortendike suffered a serious accident while on a hunting trip at Rockingham Thursday, breaking his right arm above the wrist, while cranking an automobile to return to the city. John McVicar, who accompanied him, immediately hurried the injured man to the city, where Dr. Fred Sutherland was called and the break set. This morning an X-ray photograph of the arm was taken, showing it was a simple fracture and no serious results are anticipated.

BUILDERS' EXCHANGE MEETING IS CALLED

Members of the Builders' Exchange will hold a meeting tonight at their rooms in the Carle block, at which Mayor Patters will give an address on the rest room project which is now being started. Other matters of business will be presented for consideration, and a large attendance of the members is urged.

Dainty little Christmas suggestions at the Tea Bell Woman's Exchange, 54 South Main.

Attention A. O. H.: All members of the A. O. H. and all applicants for membership are requested to meet at Eagles' Hall Sunday at 1:30. George Kelley, recording secretary.

Remember the Commercial Travelers' dance, East Side Odd Fellows' hall, Saturday, Nov. 21, 9 to 12.

others deferred as to a commanding officer. The cortege remounted and rode slowly toward the house. At last the elderly man came alongside the mule and inquired:

"Samson, where was ye last night?" "That's my business." "Mebbe hit ain't." The old mountaineer spoke with no resentment, but deep gravity. "We've been powerful uneasy about ye. Hev ye heered the news?"

"What news?" The boy put the question noncommittally. "Jesse Purvy was shot this morning."

The boy vouchsafed no reply. "The mail rider come told hit. . . . Somebody shot five shots from the laurel. . . . Purvy ain't died yet. . . . Some says as how his folks has sent ter Lexington fer blood-hounds."

The boy's eyes began to smolder hatefully. "I reckon," he spoke slowly, "he didn't get shot none too soon."

"Samson!" The old man's voice had the ring of determined authority. "When I dies ye'll be the head of the Souths, but so long as I'm a-runnin' this hyar family I keeps my word ter friend an' foe alike. I reckon Jesse Purvy knows who got yore pap, but up till now no South hain't never busted no truce."

The boy's voice dropped its softness and took on a shrill crescendo of excitement as he flashed out his retort. "Who said a South has done busted the truce this time?"

Old Spicer South gazed searchingly at his nephew. "I hain't a-wantin' ter suspicion ye, Samson, but I know how ye feels about yore pap. I heered that Bud Spicer come by hyar yistiddy plumb full of liquor an' 'lowed he'd seen Jesse an' Jim Asberry a-talkin' terger jest afore yore pap was kilt."

He broke off abruptly, then added: "Ye went away from hyar last night, an' didn't git in twell after sunup—I just heered the news, an' come ter look fer ye."

"Air you-all 'lowin' that I shot them shootin' from the laurel?" inquired Samson, quietly.

"Ef we-all hain't 'lowin' hit, Samson, we're plumb shore that Jesse Purvy's folks will 'low hit. They're jest a-holdin' yore life like a hostage fer Purvy's, anyhow. Ef he dies they'll try ter git ye."

The boy flashed a challenge about the group, which was now drawing rein at Spicer South's yard fence. His eyes were sullen, but he made no answer.

One of the men who had listened in silence now spoke:

"In the first place, Samson, we hain't a-sayin' ye done hit. In the next place, ef ye did do hit we hain't a-blamin' ye—much. But I reckon them dawgs don't lie, an', ef they trails in hyar ye'll need us. That's why we've done come."

The boy slipped down from his mule and helped Lescott to dismount. He deliberately unlatched the saddlebags and laid them on the top step of the stile, and while he held his peace, neither denying nor affirming, his kinsmen sat their horses and waited.

Even to Lescott it was palpable that some of them believed the young heir to clan leadership responsible for the shooting of Jesse Purvy, and that others believed him innocent, yet none the less in danger of the enemy's vengeance. But, regardless of divided opinion, all were alike ready to stand at his back and all alike awaited his final utterance.

Then, in the thickening gloom, Samson turned at the foot of the stile and faced the gathering. He stood rigid, and his eyes flashed with deep passion. His hands, hanging at the seams of his jeans breeches, clinched, and his voice came in a slow utterance through which throbbed the tenacity of a soul-absorbing bitterness.

"I knowed all 'bout Jesse Purvy's bein' shot. . . . When my pap lay a-dyin' over thar at his house—I was a little shaver ten years old. . . . Jesse Purvy hired somebody ter kill him. . . . an' I promised my pap that I'd find out who that man was, an' that I'd git 'em both—some day. . . . So help me, God Almighty, I'm a-goin' ter git 'em both—some day!"

The boy paused and lifted one hand as though taking an oath.

"I'm a-tellin' you-all the truth. . . . But I didn't shoot them shoots this mornin'. I hain't no truce buster. I gives ye my hand on hit. . . . Ef them dawgs come hyar they'll find me hyar, an' ef they hain't liars they'll go right by hyar. I don't low ter run away, an' I don't low ter hide out. I'm a-goin' ter stay right hyar. That's all I've got ter say ter ye."

For a moment there was no reply. Then the older man nodded with a gesture of relieved anxiety.

"That's all we wants ter know, Samson," he said, slowly. "Light, men an' come in."

CHAPTER III.

In days when the Indian held the Dark and Bloody Grounds a pioneer, felling oak and poplar logs for the home he meant to establish on the banks of a purring watercourse, let his ax slip, and the cutting edge gashed his ankle. Since to the discovered belongs the christening, that watercourse became Crippleshin, and so it is today set down on atlas pages. A few miles away, as the crow flies, but many weary leagues as a man must travel, a brother settler, racked with rheumatism, gave to his creek the name of Misery. The two pioneers had come together from Virginia, as their ancestors had come before them from Scotland. Together they had found one of the two gaps through the mountain wall, which for more than a hundred miles has no other passable rift. Together, and as comrades, they had made their homes and founded their race. What original grievance had sprung up between their descendants none of the present generation knew—perhaps it was a farm line or disputed title to a pig. The primary incident, was lost in the limbo of the past; but for fifty years, with occasional intervals of truce, lives had been snuffed out in the fiercely burning hate of these men whose ancestors had been comrades.

Old Spicer South and his nephew Samson were the direct lineal descendants of the names of Misery. Their kinsmen dwelt about them: the Souths, the Jaspers, the Spicers, the Wileys, the Millers and McCagers. Other families, related only by marriage and close association, were, in feud alignment, none the less "Souths." And over beyond the ridge, where the springs and brooks flowed the other way to feed Crippleshin, dwelt the Hollmans, the Purvisses, the Asberrys, the Hollises and the Daltons—men equally strong in their vindictive fealty to the code of the vendetta.

By mountain standards old Spicer South was rich. His lands had been claimed when tracts could be had for the taking, and, though he had to make his cross mark when there was a contract to be signed, his instinctive mind was shrewd and far seeing. The tinkle of his cowbells was heard for a long distance along the creek bottoms. His hillside fields were the richest and his coves the most fertile in that country. Some day, when a railroad should burrow through his section, bringing the development of coal and timber at the head of the rails, a sleeping fortune would yawn and awake to enrich him. There were black outcroppings along the cliffs, which he knew ran deep in veins of bituminous wealth. But to that time he looked with foreboding, for he had been raised to the standards of his forefathers and saw in the coming of a new regime a curtailment of personal liberty. For new-fangled ideas he held only the aversion of deep-rooted prejudice. He hoped that he might live out his days and pass before the foreigner held his land and the law became a power stronger than the individual or the clan. The law was his enemy, because it said to him, "Thou shalt not," when he sought to take the yellow corn which bruising labor had coaxed from scattered rockstrewn fields to his own mash vat and still. It meant, also, a tyrannous power usually seized and administered by enemies, which undertook to forbid the personal settlement of personal quarrels. But his eyes, which could not read print, could read the signs of the times. He foresaw the inevitable coming of that day. Already he had given up the worm and mash vat, and no longer sought to make or sell illicit liquor. That was a concession to the federal power, which could no longer be successfully fought. State power was still largely a weapon in factional hands, and in his country the Hollmans were the office holders. To the Hollmans he could make no concessions. In Samson, born to be the fighting man, reared to be the fighting man, equipped by nature with deep hatreds and tigerish courage, there had cropped out from time to time the restless spirit of the philosopher and a hunger for knowledge. That was a matter in which the old man found his bitterest and most secret apprehension.

It was at this house that George Lescott, distinguished landscape painter of New York and the world at large, arrived in the twilight.

Whatever enemy might have to be met tomorrow, old Spicer South recognized as a more immediate call upon his attention the wounded guest of today. One of the kinsmen proved to have a rude working knowledge of bone setting, and before the half hour had passed Lescott's wrist was in a splint, and his injuries as well tended as possible, which proved to be quite well enough.

While Spicer South and his cousins had been sustaining themselves or building up competencies by tilling their soil the leaders of the other faction were basing larger fortunes on the profits of merchandise and trade. So, although Spicer South could neither read nor write, his chief enemy, Micah Hollman, was to outward seeming an urbane and fairly equipped man of affairs. Judged by their heads, the clannishmen were rougher and more illiterate on Misery, and in closer touch with civilization on Crippleshin. A deeper scrutiny showed this seeming to be one of the strange anomalies of the mountains.

Micah Hollman had established himself at Hixon, that shack town which had passed of late years from feudal county seat to the section's one point of contact with the outside world; a town where the ancient and modern orders brushed shoulders; where the new was tolerated, but dared not become aggressive. Directly across the street from the courthouse stood an ample frame building, on whose side wall was emblazoned the legend, "Hollman's Mammoth Department Store." That was the secret stronghold of Hollman power. He had always spoken deprecatingly of that spirit of lawlessness which had given the mountains a bad name.

When the railroad came to Hixon it found in Judge Hollman, a "public-spirited citizen." Incidentally, the timber that it hauled and the coal that its flat cars carried down to the Bluegrass went largely to his consignees. He had so astutely anticipated coming events that, when the first scouts of capital sought options they found themselves constantly referred to Judge Hollman. No wheel, it seemed, could turn without his nod. It was natural that the genial storekeeper should become the big man of the community and inevitable that the one big man should become the dictator. His inherited place as leader of the Hollmans in the feud he had seemingly passed on as an obsolete prerogative.

Yet, in business matters, he was found to drive a hard bargain, and men came to regard it the part of good policy to meet rather than combat his requirements. It was essen-

HAVE YOU CATARRH?

It's a Dangerous Disease—Hyomel is the Effective Remedy.

Catarrh, which is indicated by sniffling, frequent colds and crusts in the nose is a serious disease and if not checked surely spreads to the delicate lining of the air passages, and frequently destroys the hearing.

To cure catarrh you must have something that will quickly reach the diseased tissues, kill the germs, and drive out the poison.

Hyomel is just such a remedy. Being a mixture of antiseptic oils that you breathe through a small inhaler, its health-restoring medication cannot help going direct to the raw and inflamed lining of the nose and throat, quickly relieving that choked-up feeling, stopping the unclean discharges, and healing the sore spots—you breathe freely. Even the worst cases respond at once.

There is nothing for the treatment of catarrh that is easier, more pleasant or so satisfying as Hyomel. Smith Drug Co. sell it on the "No-cure-no-pay" plan.

that to his purposes that the officers of the law in his country should be in sympathy with him. Sympathy soon became abject subservience. When a South had opposed Jesse Purvy in the primary as candidate for high sheriff he was found one day lying on his face with a bullet-riddled body. It may have been a coincidence which pointed to Jim Asberry, the judge's nephew, as the assassin. At all events, the judge's nephew was a poor boy, and a charitable grand jury declined to indict him.

In the course of five years several South adherents, who had crossed Hollman's path, became victims of the laurel ambushade. The theory of coincidence was strained. Slowly the rumor grew and persistently spread, though no man would admit having fathered it, that before each of these executions star-chamber conferences had been held in the rooms above Micah Hollman's "Mammoth Department Store." It was said that these exclusive sessions were attended by Judge Hollman, Sheriff Purvy and certain other gentlemen selected by reason of their marksmanship. When one of these victims felt John South had just returned from a law school "down below" wearing "fetched-on" clothing and thinking "fetched-on" thoughts. He had amazed the community by demanding the right to assist in probing and prosecuting the affair. He had then shocked the community into complete paralysis by requesting the grand jury to indict not alone the alleged assassin, but also his employers, whom he named as Judge Hollman and Sheriff Purvy. Then he, too, fell under a bolt from the laurel.

Gunpowder and Dynamite. While both gunpowder and dynamite are explosives, they fall into different structural classifications. Gunpowder is a nitrate mixture, whereas dynamite is a nitro compound—that is, the former is a combination of nitrogen solution mixed with other ingredients, and the latter is a compound of nitro-glycerin absorbed by a porous inert solid material.

Only Sure Corn Cure Ever Known

"Get-it!" the New Way, 2 Drops Do It. To endure the pains and tortures caused by a little thing like a corn is ridiculous, simply because it is unnecessary. The new-plan corn cure, "GETS-IT!" is the first one ever known to remove corns without pain, without pain and without trouble.

Use "GETS-IT!" for Corns and You Will Find It's the Best When You Put on Your Shoes.

This is why it is the biggest-selling corn cure in existence today. It is now used by millions, because it does away with sticky tape, with plaster and cotton lings that shift their position and press down onto the corn, with knives that "raw up" the toe, with "barrenness" that cause pressure and pain, with knives, razors and files, clawing and pulling at a corn.

"GETS-IT!" is applied in two seconds. Two drops applied with the glass rod do the work. Pain goes, the corn shrivels, vanishes. Accept no substitute. Try it on any corn, wart, callus or bunion to "GETS-IT!" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

Dinner Stories

A New York salesman tells of a stay made by him at a western hotel where he observed an old-fashioned roller towel.

Terrible times these! The other day an innocent-eyed young lady, whose demeanor has always been sweet and gentle, went to a bookstore and returned with three volumes under her arm.

"What have you there?" she was asked by a male friend. Of course he expected for an answer the titles of three fluffy novels full of moonlight and love.

Instead the gentle young thing rattled off glibly: "Oh, I've just bought 'Armies and Navies in the World War,' 'The Beginnings of the Great European Struggle,' and 'Battles of the War on Land and Sea.'"

"Ye gods!" gasped the man, and then under his breath: "Sherman was right."

"It is said that two people can live on less than one. How do you account for it?"

"Necessity."

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Makes It Lifeless, Dull, Dry, Brittle and Thin.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

ECZEMA ITCHED FOR 20 YEARS—RESINOL CURED

Dec. 8, 1913: "I had eczema for 20 years. It started on me when I was but 13 years old and am now 34, and have suffered all these years. It started with small pimples all over my face, arms and hands. My hands would swell up so that I could not shut them, and I was almost blind. It would itch, then burn, and I had to keep the affected parts wrapped up so that I would not scratch them. I couldn't sleep at all—just walked the floor a whole night."

"I have tried many different remedies, and spent a large sum of money, but had no relief. Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment were recommended to me. They gave me great relief after the third application, and after using four jars of Resinol Ointment and three cakes of Resinol Soap, I am completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. Fleeger, Box 13, Dauphin, Pa.

Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap sold by all druggists for 19 years.

In a city not ten thousand miles from here lived two young women both of good address, both energetic and eagerly willing to earn. The first young woman decided to enter the magazine business, as solicitor and collector for several of the A 1 publications. She made the necessary arrangements with the managers and with a heart beating fast, with hope and a wee bit of embarrassment, she sallied forth.

She worked for a week, then another; she was not one to easily go down to defeat. She met with a fair amount of success, but she was not drawing what the people are pleased to think a banker's salary. (A banker's salary, let it be understood, while it is never elastic, has a vague something about it that makes it sound almost infinite.) She canvassed with conscientious energy every possibility along the magazine line. We will leave her trudging down the street in quest of a customer and hunt up the second girl.

She also had decided to enter the magazine field, as she figured, that if one run this business right they could make a good wage and be virtually their own boss. She sat back and planned a bit. She wanted every one in her home town to know just what she was going to do—wisely planning that if they knew, it would save her much unnecessary talking; much time in explaining her call to each and every woman in their respective homes.

So, for two weeks before she started out she inserted her little ad to the effect that she would, on a certain day, start out with certain magazines. She solicited orders by phone and suggested to the readers of her ad that they be in readiness for the bargains in good reading that she would shortly bring to their door.

She transacted over twice the volume of business that the young girl did who relied entirely upon her own resources.

Reiteration, while monotonous, is oftentimes necessary. Therefore allow us to suggest that you grow to know the value of the want ad page of your own home paper.

Vanity of Life.

It would be difficult to rival the epitaph of Cardinal Onuphrio which, in half a dozen words sums up the vanity of life—"Here lies a shadow—ashest—nothing!" and that of Cardinal Macarini's beautiful niece, Marie Mancini, who, after draining the cup of worldly pleasure to the dregs, wrote, as she lay dying, her own epitaph, "Marie Mancini, Dust and Ashes."

PROVISIONS FOR THE ARMY IN THE FIELD.

Importance of keeping body well nourished.

In time of war, the greatest effort is always made toward cutting off the enemy's base of supplies. It is the well-nourished people who fight the strongest and live the longest and contribute most to human progress. Is your stomach doing its duty—does it convert food into good blood and tissue?

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been so successful in the treatment of indigestion, that thousands of former sufferers owe their good health to-day to its wonderful power, and testimonials prove it.

It cures the little muscular fibres into activity and causes the gastric juices to thoroughly mix with the food you eat, simply because it supplies the stomach with pure, rich blood. It weak, impure blood that causes stomach weakness. Get good blood through the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you will have no more indigestion.

It is the world's proved blood purifier. It's not a secret remedy for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. Start to take it to-day and before another day has passed, the impurities of the blood will begin to leave your body through the liver, kidneys, bowels and skin, and in a few days you will know by your steadier nerves, firmer step, keener mind, brighter eye and clearer skin that the bad blood is passing out and new, rich, pure blood is filling your veins and arteries.

The same good blood will cause pimples, acne, eczema and all skin troubles to disappear. For all skin Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the helpful remedy that nearly everyone needs. It contains no alcohol or narcotics of any kind.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a yellow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective.

They bring about an exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

My Dear Sir:—For some time I was afflicted with hemorrhages of the lungs, and later I was taken with a severe attack of pneumonia. When I recovered sufficiently to walk about the house I was left with a frightful hacking cough, which no medicine I had taken could relieve. It was at this time, March, 1914, that I started taking Eckman's Alternative.

In a short time my cough was gone and I was pronounced well. I cannot speak too highly for the good it has done! (Abbreviated.)

(Signed) HOWARD L. KLOTZ, Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and in building up the system. CROP STILL FIRM
TOBACCO MEN SAY

Close Buying Still Continues to Feature This Locality.—Eastern Firms Buying Vernon County.

Reported rumors of large local purchases of the 1914 tobacco crop in southern Wisconsin were dissipated yesterday by a number of Janesville dealers. True, some purchasing has been done during the past eight days, but the aggregate number of acres secured for local working is comparatively small, they say.

The acreage in Wisconsin was smaller than was anticipated in the season. Growers planned for a very healthy increase in acreage, but the season which was so far from ideal made it impossible to plant as great a crop as first contemplated. Then again, more damage was done by the storms after the crop was well along.

During the middle of last week riders improved opportunity and with the fine weather were able to cover considerable ground, placing contracts wherever terms were agreeable. Some several hundred acres must have been purchased, but tobacco men in this locality are at loss to understand why the new crop should be moving at the present slow rate after practically no buying whatever started. The crop is as crisp as a soda cracker now and as a result there is little opportunity to inquire into the merits of the weed as to size and color.

A general impression prevails throughout the growing sections, that the crop will run longer in short grades than in 1913 but with about an even break in the price which will not go out to packing, which must be taken into consideration in fixing the cost of binder stock.

Growers are expected to looken up a little as the holiday season approaches, to be followed shortly after with tax receipts. Riders are expected to arrive in this locality in greater numbers shortly.

Wisconsin's acreage this year is said to be 123,000 against 125,000 for 1913; 127,700 for 1912; 146,000 for 1911; 102,000 for 1910; 134,000 for 1909; and 133,000 acres for 1908. Eastern tobacco companies purchased 1,000 acres in Vernon county during the past two weeks. Few representatives are seen locally.

Jesus and Pilate. (The Story.)

Pilate was a misfit as procurator of Judea. The Jewellman (as his name may signify) kept hurling his darts at hierarchy and people. He brought his shields, dedicated to Tiberius there, took money out of the temple treasury to build an aqueduct, all in defiance of the religious scruples of the populace. He mingled the blood of the Galileans with that of their sacrifices. The Jews had already appealed to Caesar, and not unsuccessfully, against this tyranny. Under circumstances like these Pilate had come up to keep the peace during the passover week. Imagine, then, his feelings when, the feast being at its height and the city crammed to its utmost capacity with a heterogeneous throng from every quarter, there appeared at the portal of his palace a mob headed by the high priest, and all worked to the highest pitch of religious frenzy. It was aggravating to the last degree. Yet fear of an appeal to Rome, whose fixed policy was the conciliation of the province, required at this juncture that these imperious petitioners should not be driven unheard from the judgment seat. I. Pilate makes with his grace his first concession. The Jews will not enter the judgment hall for fear of ceremonial defilement. So the procurator places his curule outside. Before him, his hands bound, stands the object of this religious fury. The accusation is demanded. Pilate's answer is, "Take him and punish him according to your law." This brings the confession that power to inflict capital punishment is no longer theirs. The charge is that Jesus is a deceiver, encourages the withholding of tribute, and calls himself king. Pilate beckons Jesus, and both retire into the comparative privacy of the judgment hall. He asks him: "Art thou, poor, lone peasant, king of the Jews?" Jesus puts the counter-question: "Do you ask me whether I am king in the Roman or Jewish sense of that word?" Pilate replies: "In the Roman sense I am, no king. In the mistaken Hebrew sense, too, I am no king. My kingdom is unlike any earthly or political sovereignty. If it were, I would have trained my followers to arms." "Are you a king in any sense?" asks the judge. The answer is: "I am. My realm is truth, my subjects the lovers of truth. Truth, that transcendent ideal, is this." Pilate announces the innocence of Jesus. Accusations all the air like flying arrows. The ruse of transferring the jurisdiction to Herod Antipas fails. "What shall I do with Jesus?" asks the bewildered Governor. "Crucify him!" is the answer. One more protest. "Why crucify an innocent man? Let me scourge him only." Like a wild sea the vociferation breaks about the Gabbatha. Pilate washes his hands. The Jews accept the onus. Direct from the scourging, decked with mock insignia, his lifeblood giving new tint to the motley avement, Pilate, as a last appeal, cries: "Behold the man! Is not this suffering and humiliation enough?" "Crucify!" is the only answer. "Then crucify him if you will; but he is innocent of offense against any law of which I am cognizant." The Jewish answer: "He had violated the Jewish law, the penalty of which is death. He affirms himself the Son of God." Pilate takes Jesus aside to ask him the meaning of the term. The meaning is beyond his comprehension. Jesus is silent. Pilate marvels, exclaiming: "I have power to crucify or acquit you." Jesus answers: "You have power only because God permits you to use it. You are guilty because you condemn me knowing me to be innocent; but those are more guilty who delivered me to you, as they sin against greater light." "Will they not prefer Jesus to Barabbas as the object of clemency in this war festival according to custom?" With the collapse of this last shift comes the ominous warning of Pilate's wife. He is on the point, even so late, of acquitting the accused, when the prosecutor lets drive the war arrow in his quiver. "Let this man go; for you are not Caesar's friend!" "Behold your king!" says Pilate. "We have no king but Caesar!" they retort. "Crucify!" "Shall I crucify your king?" "We have no king but Caesar!" resounds once more. So ends the long-drawn battle in which the life of Jesus is at stake. Pilate orders him to the cross.

The Teacher's Lantern.

Pilate is a conspicuous type of the time-server. His ruling motive was to keep his place. To do this he was willing to condemn the innocent if necessary. A time-serving brought him some reward. He clung on to his official life a few years; but, on complaint of the Jews, was deposed and exiled. Pilate's name will go down to the end of time in deepest infamy as it is repeated in every language in the hostile cry: "Crucified under Pontius Pilate." Yet to some degree he showed a Roman's proverbial regard for law and justice. He demanded the accusation and defense. Claudius had Pilatus may not have been the actual scene of Pilate's suicide, but seems a fitting memorial of him. Take from the galleries of the Old World the pictures, the themes of which are suggested by the life of Jesus, and art would be impoverished. The Gospels still yield inspiration, as Munkacsy's Christ Before Pilate shows. Art thou king? How unlikely! Yet Jesus was the real ruler. Pilate's power, then on the wane, lasted a scant six years longer. Jesus's dominion has lasted twenty centuries. Destiny of Hebrew nation trembled in the balance that day. "Once to every man and nation comes the moment to decide, In the strife of truth with falsehood, for the good or evil side." The choice was evil. Jesus is the touchstone of individual as well as national character. Destiny is fixed by attitude assumed toward him. Choice is pressed. "Which will ye?"

A Joyous Life. (Thanksgiving Meeting.)

"Be glad and rejoice! Luther looked long from his study-window into the starry heavens and then retired. Next morning he said to Melancthon, 'I saw a miracle last night, Philip.' Something, however, was of course, expected, but Luther only said, 'I saw the dome of heaven with all its constellations supported upon nothing.' The invisible Omnipotence which supports the material universe and insures the constancy of nature is the standing miracle 'expressed upon the eyes of all.' The fidelity of God is high warrant for man's joy."

BARELY ESCAPED DYING AT ORFORDVILLE THURSDAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Orfordville, Nov. 19.—A serious accident was narrowly averted at the local railroad yards on Thursday morning. While freight No. 31 was unloading way freight the train was "cut" at the crossing at the east end of the depot, on completing their work the train hands proceeded to couple up ready for departure, after the signal had been given and the train was backing for the coupling. A farmer, who was standing on the platform of the scales with a load of coal, attempted to pass between the two sections of the train in spite of the warning shouts of the trainmen. When the train was so close to him that it seemed impossible for him to escape being caught, Conductor Gallagher, with great presence of mind and with equal agility, sprang and seized the lever of the air brake and brought the train to a standstill within about five feet of the farmer's wagon. Conductor Gallagher was struck by the rubber hose of the air and knocked down, but fortunately fell outside of the track and away from the moving section of the train.

Mr. J. H. Sater, who for the past few weeks has been visiting with his daughter, Mrs. H. C. Schenk of Madison, has returned to Orfordville.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Here are about sixteen song hits

The "Crinoline Girl" number in "One Girl in a Million" at Myers Theatre, matinee and evening, Wednesday, November 25.

In the new musical fun show, "One Girl in a Million." Among the number are: "I Never Side-Step a Number," "The Comedy of Love," "The Butterfly and the Bee," "Herman, the High Man," "I Wanted to be a Bachelor," "In the Golden Golden, Long Ago," "I Hate You," "Blind Man's Buff," "Moonlight on the Rhine," "Daddy," "Grown-up Ladies," "Will You Love Me When I Am Bored?" The latter as sung by Felix Adler along with his clever mimicry, is an evening's entertainment in itself. "One Girl in a Million" comes to Myers Theatre, for matinee and evening, Wednesday, November 25, with original cast as seen in the popular musical comedy producing theatre, The La Salle, Chicago.

AT MYERS THEATRE

Manager Myers says that the bill for this week is right up to standard, right in the same class as last week's bill, and you'll remember that was very good. Heading the bill is Lillian Dorn and company, billed as Scotch Mystics, an act rivaling that of Ethel May. Loose Bros., harmony singers, should furnish some good songs. Roland Travers and Company are billed as Illusionists Extraordinary. Augmented orchestra will furnish accompaniment.

"The Trey O' Hearts"

The 13th episode, "The Trey O' Hearts," "The Jaws of Death" will be shown tonight. More excitement than heretofore is promised.

Late interesting events in and near Chicago will be shown through the medium of The Chicago Herald Moving pictures, including scenes at the slaughter of cattle at the stockyards, Chicago, in an attempt to eradicate the dreaded foot and mouth disease.

MARKET CLOSES STRONG.
Chicago, Nov. 20.—After a break of 40¢@75¢ in hog values, the market yesterday reacted 5¢@10¢, closing strong, with only 1,500 left in pens.

Smaller receipts and higher provision prices helped trade. Packers bought freely after the noon hour, largely at $7.30@7.40.

More life characterized the cattle trade, yet prices stood the lowest of the week and the lowest since last June. Lambs advanced 10¢@15¢, selling within 10¢ of the high point for the month. This is the highest November in record.

Receipts for today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 21,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep, against 1,523 cattle, 27,443 hogs and 11,253 sheep corresponding Friday a year ago.

Hog Average Higher.
Average price of hogs at Chicago was $7.53 against $7.23 Wednesday, $7.70 two weeks ago, $7.75 a month ago, $7.87 a year ago, $7.78 two years ago and $6.35 three years ago.

Speculators bought hogs freely and the early market was steady to 5¢ higher. Trade was draggy and weak around 10 o'clock, but packers jumped in around the noon hour and bought freely at 5¢@10¢ advance.

Their droves averaging 190@245 lbs. cost $7.30@7.47. Price range was the narrowest of the year. Poorer grades advanced most. Quality fairly good. Quotations follow:

Bulk of sales 7.25@7.45
Heavy butchers and ship- 7.35@7.55
ping butchers, 190@250

Question: What makes the rows of little round holes in the trunks of apple trees? Are they injurious to the tree, and if so, what is the remedy?

Answer: I am glad to answer this question because it introduces the services of a friend of the apple trees, who is sometimes taken for an enemy, and it is a pleasure to present the tiny individual in his true light.

Holes such as described above are made in trees by woodpeckers, and if in the apple tree it is probable that they are the work of the little downy woodpecker, the smallest of our woodpeckers.

The following quotation from the Ornithologist, Wilson, an authority on birds, is to the point here.

"Of all our woodpeckers none rid the apple tree of so many vermin as this digging off the moss which the negligence of the proprietor had suffered to accumulate, and being ever on the alert, he is particularly fond of boring the apple trees for insects, digging a circular hole through the bark just sufficient to admit his bill; after that a second, third, etc., in pretty regular horizontal circles around the body of the tree. These parallel circles of holes are often not more than an inch or an inch and a half apart. From nearly the surface of the ground up to the first fork, and sometimes far beyond it, the whole bark of many apple trees is perforated in this manner, so as to appear as if made by successive discharges of buck-shot; and our little woodpecker is the principal perpetrator of this supposed mischief. I say supposed, for, so far as these perforations of the bark being ruinous, they are not only harmless, but I have good reason to believe really beneficial."

"In more than fifty orchards which I have myself carefully examined, those trees which were marked by the woodpecker (some trees they never touch) perhaps because not perforated by insects) were uniformly the most thriving. Of decayed trees more than three-fourths were untouched by the woodpecker."

So if your apple trees are well-bored by the woodpeckers you have no cause for alarm, but rather of thankfulness that your trees are protected by such a faithful little guardian.

You may see him some day at work and recognize him by the scarlet spot on the top of his head, his white back and his black and white tail and wings.

He has a relative who looks exactly like him excepting that he is three inches longer. The little downy woodpecker (dryobates pubescens) is only a little more than six inches in length, or about the length of the English sparrow, but much more slender. The hairy woodpecker (dryobates villosus) is a little more than nine inches but his markings are so similar that the difference in length is the distinguishing point.

Question: It is too late to plant tulips? How deep should the bulbs be set?—A. L. B.

Answer: If the ground is not frozen too hard you may plant tulips as late as Thanksgiving day. At present writing, however, with the ground well frozen, it looks as if the time were past for this year. But it may thaw again. Tulips should be planted three to four inches deep and about four or five inches apart in any good soil, well enriched. A protection of straw or manure or leaves is advised during the severe winter months.

These if you care tonight, would you take it as a joke or would you get "paved?" The answer to these questions are within the province of Mrs. Thompson (see Woman's Page), but it is a very real situation which is annoying a certain young man and a certain young woman of Janesville, even if their friends do find reason for unusual merriment in it.

A few mornings ago the young man in question was called back by his mother just as he was leaving home for his place of employment, and told to stop at a certain well known store and bring her up a box that was there belonging to her. It contained two suits of red flannel underwear, as the woman in question was of the opinion that red flannel was a sure preventive of rheumatism.

There was to be a party on this particular evening and the young man, a busy morning and on his way home to lunch stopped and secured the box for his mother and also stopped at the florist's and secured the flowers. Into the box he intended leaving at the young lady's home he slipped his card with the words above indicated penciled on the back.

Coming out of the florist's he met a friend who asked him to stay down town to lunch. He agreed and called a boy gave him a coin and entrusted the delivery of the boxes to him.

You know what that blundered boy did? He mixed the boxes and, tragedy of tragedies, the young man accepted the delivery of the boxes to look his way out of the back.

Now who would think that a girl could be so unreasonable? The mother has gladly accepted her red flannels, but the girl would not accept the flowers. Girls surely are queer.

BREAK A CHILD'S COLD BY GIVING SYRUP OF FIGS

CLEANSES THE LITTLE LIVER AND BOWELS AND THEY GET WELL QUICK

When your child suffers from a cold don't wait; give the little stomach, liver and bowels a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

If your child coughs, snuffles and has caught cold or is feverish or has a sore throat give a good dose of "California Syrup of Figs." To evacuate the bowels no difference what other treatment is given.

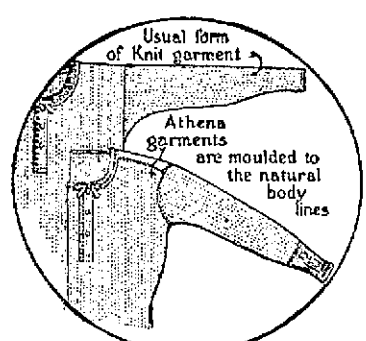

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."
